One of the signs of the times is the mortality which prevails among the freedmen whenever cold weather sets in. While the summer's sun shines, and the Ethiopian hide can find comfort on the ground, or be cosy along the outside of a hard plank-like lazy reptiles basking on log and leaf-freedom seems an endurable thing, and the negro gets along moderately well on a full stomach. But cold weather requires providing; it needs houserent, and more wood to burn than summer does; clothing is an indispensable, and the beauties of emancipation, in the want of these, do not show in such attractive coloring. With less forethought than aunts and bees, the negro is an extravagant consumer, and the semblance of winter comforts deceives him till death too often knocks at his door, and he goes to give account to a more merciful master than emancipation has been.

Negro funerals are common events now-a-days, and one's disgust at their imprudent habits is almost lost in the contemplation of that unwise act which places him in harder servitude than before, and acquaints him with sufferings that he thought not in existence. We learn of families that, unable to pay house-rent, seek the protection of cellars against the blasts of winter. Three funerals were preached for dead negroes in one day last week-an event that was wonderful among that hardy race as slaves. The beauties of sudden emancipation !-- how express them except in vagrancy, in want, in death? Shall time show the twentyfold multiplication of benevolent societies, or the almost entire extinction of the freedman?

Noble Sentiments .- This is an agreeable world after all. If we should only bring ourselves to look at the objects that surround us in their | Young Men, and Others true light, we should see beauty where before we beheld deformity, and listen to harmony where before we could hear nothing but discord. To be sure there is great anxiety and vexation to meet; we cannot expect to sail upon a summer sea forever ; yet if we preserve a calm eye and a steady hand, we can so trim our sails and manage our helm as to avoid the quicksands and weather the storms that threaten shipwreck.

We are members of one great family; we are all traveling the same road, and shall arrive at the same goal. We breathe the free air, we are subject to the same bounty, and we shall lie down on the bosom of our cummon mother. It is not becoming then that brother should hate brother; it is not proper that friend should deceive friend; it is not right that neighbor should injure neighbor. We pity that man who can harbor enmity against his fellow; he loses half the enjoyment of life; he embitters his own existence. Let us tear from our eyes the colored medium that invests every object with the green hue of jealousy and suspicion; turn a deaf ear to the tale of scandal; breathe the spirit of charity from our lips, and from our hearts let the rich gushings of human kindness swell up as from a fountain, so the 'golden age' will become no fiction, and the 'island of the blessed' bloom more than Hesperian beauty.

For Cotton Bales.

UNITED STATES PATENT, APRIL, 1865. N FASSMAN'S PATENT IRON TIES, the hoop for the button is punched with two holes at one end and fifteen at the other. The band has only to be drawn tight, the holes in the two ends to be brought together,—the two hole end on top— and the button inserted. One button will answer, but it is better to insert two. With the Buckle Tie, one end of the hoop is fas-tened to one section of the Buckle, the other end is inserted in the other section, and simply shoved through it under the other end as long as there is any slack. A bite on the buckle holds it securely to

The hoors are painted to prevent rust, and cut in lengths of 10, 101 and 1 feet. Ten feet are most generally used, but 104 and 11 are sometimes required for large bales. The buckles are fastened to the hoops, the buttons will be put up in small boxes. The Weight is About 10 Pounds to the Bale of

The advantages of iron over rope for baling cotton are now universally acknowledged. It holds the bale in a much smaller compass; is applied and fastened with as much facility, both in the country tened with as much facility, both in the country pressing and the re-compressing at the sea ports; lessens immensely the risk from fire; is stronger, and its strength is not impaired by time and exposure as is that of rope. This last advantage has seed strikingly manifested during the war. Thoubands of bales of Cotton have been lost by the rotting and breaking of Rope which could have been preserved if Iron hoops had been used. In addition to this, it can be furnished cheaper than Rope. The derangement of labor in the hemp growing states has reduced the supply of hemp to such an extent as to cause prices to rule unprecedently high: indeed a sufficiency for baling a moderate cotton crop, cannot be relied on at any price.

I have arranged for the importation of a large quantity of the best English Iron, and have made arrangements with Messrs. Chambers & Latting for the sale and delivery of my Ties.

the sale and delivery of my Ties. The undersigned, Fire Warden and Fire Inspector of the New Orleans Insurance Companies, are of opinion that the Iron Tie affords greater protection against loss in case of fire than the old style of baling with rope.

J. YOUENES, File Warden,
J. HN ADAMS, Fire Inspector. I concur in the above,

ALFRED BELANGER, Ex-Chief Engineer, Fire Department. SHIP REFUGE, NEW ORLEANS, July 7, 1859. H. Fassmann, Esq , Orleans Cotton Press:

Sir: In January last I received from your Press 1089 bales of cotton, of which about 1000 were recompressed and bound with your new "Iron Tie." I can safely affirm that the cotton so bound was received in better order than it generally comes from the Presses, that it stowed better, and enabled the ship to carry more than on any previous voyage

The cotton when discharged from the ship in Liverpool, was in better order than the repe bound cotton, it is highly preferable for a ground tier, as dampness from the ballast has no effect upon it, for it is well known by practical more than the reperior. it is well known by practical men that dampness will rot the rope bound. I can confidently recommend your "Iron Tie," as I took this lot for an experiment and carefully watched it both in loading and dis-
